Today's Gospel Reflection

The world, despite its rebellion against God and hostility towards Jesus and his followers, continues to be the object of God's love. In fact, the Word became flesh because God so loved the world and desired to save it. Jesus sent his disciples into the world, and today also sends us, present-day believers, to continue to engage the world, and win it for God. The prospect of the world's hatred may scare the wits out of us, but today's Gospel gives us the assurance that we are protected by the prayer of Jesus. The evil one that rules the world cannot overcome us because we are shielded by the very name of the Father. Love, the greatest power in the world, is our weapon against the world's hatred. It is the benevolent weapon that will conquer the world for God's Kingdom.

Lord Jesus, train us to wield the weapon of love and defeat with it the world's hatred. Amen.
