Today's Gospel Reflection

Our ultimate destiny is divinization- participation in the very life of God. To bring this about, God, in the person of the Jewish Messiah, becomes part of earthly reality-flesh and blood- incarnated in space and time. Through Jesus Christ's flesh and blood, which is joined to his divinity, he will transmit the life of God to us. To do this, he will lay down his life, submitting his physical form (flesh and blood) to destruction on the cross and arise to the new life, which is God's gift to us. In the symbolic language of the Johannine Gospel, the reference to "eating flesh and drinking blood," which the Jews found crude and objectionable, simply means accepting this Paschal Mystery in faith.

Lord Jesus, through your incarnation, you bridged the divide between our earthly existence and the promise of eternity. Thank you for elevating us into the divine mystery of your grace. Amen.
