St. Edward the Confessor

“The Kingdom of Heaven is the only kingdom worth striving for.”

King Edward the Confessor

St. Edward is called the 'Confessor' because he lived a holy, devout, virtuous and prayerful life and died a natural death, rather than being killed for his faith as a martyr.

St. Edward the Confessor is the patron saint of Kings, difficult marriages and separated spouses.

Personal Character and Piety

*Deep Devotion: He was known for his gentleness, charity to the poor, and intense religious dedication, living a life more akin to a monk than a typical ruthless medieval monarch.

*Historical and hagiographical tradition maintains that King Edward the Confessor lived a celibate life, even though he was married.

*Building Westminster Abbey: He funded and constructed the original Westminster Abbey as a great house of prayer.

Canonization: Pope Alexander III officially declared him a saint in 1161.
